THE HIGHER PATRIOTISM

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 1:1-3; 3:1-5; 4:5-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Is True Patriotism?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Patriotism and Internationalism.

The lesson committee has rightly suggested the entire book of Jonah as the basis of our study. The topic selected by the committee may seem a little unusual. It will hardly do to call the spirit which moved Jonah to preach to the Ninevites, patriotism; rather, we should recognize it as the passion of a missionary going forth with the message of God, urging men to repent and turn to Him. Patriotism means love for one's country, while the spirit of the missionary is passionate love for lost men of all countries.

I. Jonah's Call and Commission (1:1, 2).

Jonah, a Jew, was called to go and preach repentance to a Gentile city. In a real sense, salvation is of the Jews, in the seed of Abraham all nations of the earth shall be blessed (Gen. 12:1, 2). The story of Jonah graphically portrays the history of Israel as a nation. God separated Israel to be the channel through which His mercy and salvation were to be carried to all the nations of the earth. They, like Jonah, have been recreant to duty. Because of this God has caused them to be swallowed up by the nations, who will one day in the future spue them out upon dry ground, Palestine. After chastisement they, like Jonah, will discharge their obligation and nations will repent and turn to God.

II. Jonah's Flight From Duty (1:3).

He turned his back upon God and attempted to flee from His presence. He went in the opposite direction to which he was sent. He did not believe in foreign missions. In the same way, Israel has become an apostate people, and instead of a blessing has become a burden and curse to the nations.

III. Jonah's Correction (1:4-2:10).

1. Overtaken by a storm (1:5).

The whole scene came upon the disobedient servant of God. So with the Jews, misfortune after misfortune, storm after storm have overtaken them because they turned from God. They are now tossed about by the nations. They, like Jonah, are asleep.

2. Cast overboard (1:15).

In their perplexity the sailors cast lots and the lot fell upon Jonah. According to his own direction they did this. God had prepared a great fish which swallowed Jonah.

3. Jonah's deliverance (ch. 2).

Jonah in his affliction turned to God and prayed (James 5:13).

God miraculously preserved him while in the belly of the fish. God has miraculously preserved Israel while in the heart of the nations. The fish could not digest Jonah, neither can the nations assimilate Israel. Jonah repented while in the fish. So Israel will repent as she goes into the great tribulation. God made the fish to vomit out Jonah. So He will at the proper time cause the nations to cast out Israel.

IV. Jonah's Commission Renewed. (3:1-10).

Although Israel has been rebellious and failed in the execution of her commission, she will repent and go forward to fulfill her commission in preaching the gospel to the nations of the earth observe.

1. The field of his ministry (v. 3).

It was to be the great Gentile city Nineveh.

2. His message (v. 4).

He was instructed to "preach the preaching" which God had commanded him to utter—Nineveh was to be overthrown within forty days.

3. Effect upon the people of Nineveh (vv 5-10).

They repented and sued for pardon In the time to come the Gentile nations will repent of their sins when the gospel of the kingdom is preached unto them by the Jews.

V. Jonah's Behavior (4:1-11).

1. His displeasure (vv 1-3).

He now makes known the real reason for his flight from duty. He knew that the gracious God would spare the people who repented.

2. God reproves Jonah (vv. 4-11).

By means of the gourd God shows him his error. The closing scene affords a striking example of the patience and pity of God in contrast with the hard-heartedness of man.

Hidden Gold Found

A story is told of a man whose home and mill, all that he had in the world, were swept away by floods But, as he stood on the scene of his loss, after the water had subsided, broken-hearted and discouraged, he saw something shining in the bank, which the water had washed bare. It was gold. The flood which had begared him, had made him rich. "Sorrow strips off loved possessions, but reveals the treasures of the love o. God."

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I SUFFERED from indigestion—everything I ate gave me heartburn," says Mrs. Mattie Mullins, of Pound, Va.

"For months, I did not see a well day. I worried along, but never felt well.

"I got a package of Thedford's Black-Draught at the store and began taking it—a dose every night before going to bed. I had been having an awful pain. After I had taken Black-Draught, this pain entirely stopped. I began to gain in weight, and rested well at night. In a few months I was feeling fine. My health was better than it had been in years.

"I keep Black-Draught in our home, and we all take it for constipation and upset stomach."

BAKE AT HOME

Baking at home is a simple process today compared to what it used to be. Formerly a woman had to measure out the flour, the baking powder and the salt. If she were using soda and buttermilk she would have to guess at the acidity of the milk. Some days her biscuits or cakes would be perfect while the next day they would be far from palatable. There was too much guess work in baking at home. Today all guess work has been taken out of baking by the appearance on the market of self-rising flour. Self-rising flour has the leavening or baking powder accurately proportioned by weight, and has the right amount of salt for seasoning.

An Up-Side-Down Cake Makes a Delicious Dessert.

With self-rising flour, baking at home is a great indoor sport. It is easy; it is reliable; it saves from 25 to 40 per cent time in mixing biscuits and from 25 to 60 per cent in mixing cakes.

Furthermore, baking at home makes the money go further. From actual statistics we know that money goes from 20 to 40 per cent further than if one buys bakery goods.

Why not make an Up-Side-Down cake for dinner tonight? Here is the recipe for that unusually attractive dessert: Make a cake batter of one egg as follows:

¼ cup butter	¼ cup milk
½ cup sugar	1½ cups self-rising flour
1 egg	½ tsp. vanilla

Cream the butter thoroughly, add sugar and continue to cream until the granules have dissolved, add the unbeaten egg and beat until blended. Add the flour and milk alternately, then the flavoring.

Fold the flour in quickly and gently, handling as little as possible.

From this batter the Up-Side-Down cake is made this way:

Standard one egg cake batter	½ cup diced pineapple
1 cup brown sugar	1 cup raisins or dates
4 tbs. butter	1 cup cherry or other preserves
1 cup nuts

Melt the butter in an iron skillet; add the sugar and mix until blended; remove the skillet from the fire; spread the sugar and butter mixture in an even layer; then add the fruits and nuts in layers; pour the batter on top and bake in a slow oven about forty-five minutes. Loosen the cake from the edges, and turn out as quickly as possible after taking it from oven. Serve with hard sauce or whipped cream.

His First Vest

"My golly, Dad—I'm 'bout to roast!"
My boy has often said,
When he was dressed in Sunday best,
And he his coat would shed.
For no boy likes to wear a coat,
For style's a thing they scoff.
And so it is mine says: "Gee whiz!"
When he can't take his off!

He always gave the same excuse,
And that was, "I'm too hot!"
And all put out, he'd scowl and pout,
When told that he could not!
But just a little while ago,
He ceased to fuss and fret
And now, today, though strange to say,
He willingly will sweat!

He no more kicks about the heat—
With cooler blood he's blest
(And that's no boshl) for now, b'gosh,
At last, he wears a VEST!
However hot the room may be—
So warm it makes me yawn,
And fall asleep—that boy will keep
That vest of his still on!

"I'd take that off," I say to him,
"You hardly need it now,"
I'm 'bout to die, so hot am I—
And sweat runs down my brow!
"Oh, I'm all right," he says to me,
And proudly pats his chest!
Though hot as fire, his cheeks perspire,
He will not shed that VEST!

Surprise Birthday Dinner Party

A very delightful birthday dinner party was given at his home in honor of Mr. B. H. W. Martin, on November 9th. He was seventy-eight on the eighth and he was taken altogether by surprise but enjoyed it very much.

There were forty-six people present to make his joys complete. His three brothers, Mr. S. R. Martin, J. W. C. Martin and T. H. Martin and sister, Mrs. Tom Moore, all of Appomattox county, were at the birthday dinner. Of his 13 children only eleven were present, Mr. T. H. Martin, of Louisa County, and Mr. E. A. Martin, of Lynchburg, were the absent ones. Although they could not be with their dear dad, the others were Mesdames C. A. Goodman, of Portsmouth Ohio; F. E. Moore, of Roanoke; Bennett Harding and Miss Estelle Martin, of Beckham; Messrs. J. E. Martin, E. B. Martin, M. G. Martin and A. C. Martin, of Oakville; Leonard and Suhling Martin, of Beckham. There were twelve grandchildren and two great grandchildren present. His wife added cheerfulness and life to the party. He received many useful gifts which were greatly appreciated.

The crowd arrived early in the morning and then the joy began. Promptly at twelve o'clock the dining room door was opened and the guest at the first table entered to feast on the picnic dinner which was brought by the children. Mr. B. H. W. Martin was delighted at the appearance of the table. The birthday cake was filled with candles, all of which were lighted. These he had the pleasure of extinguishing. Then his brother Jonnie asked the blessing beautifully. After this there was a clatter of plates and my! how every one enjoyed the good eats.

The principal game of the day was croquet, which was played and enjoyed by a large number. In the afternoon Mrs. E. B. Martin, of Oakville, and Mrs. Suhling Martin, of Beckham, played a few selections on the piano, which concluded the happenings of the day.

Bad Rabbits

Dr. Ennion G. Williams, State Health Commissioner, makes the following statement "The germs of tularemia get into the blood streams of various rodents, principally wild rabbits in Virginia; and men get the disease through handling dead rabbits. If the rabbit handler has a cut place in his skin and gets into the cut some blood from a rabbit that has tularemia, then the man will most probably get the disease.

WOMAN PROSPECTOR FIGHTS FOR RICHES

One of Most Romantic Figures in North.

Toronto.—Kathleen Rice, who threw aside the hood of a college graduate to wrest wealth from the North, is preparing to fight to the last ditch in the Manitoba mining courts for her hopes of fortune, as the reward of two decades of pioneering in the country of The Pas.

Behind the issuance of a writ and the scheduled hearing of a case at Dauphin, Man., is a story of how millions have unwisely crossed the path of this most famous of Canadian women prospectors, who, however, today faces the future confident that 20 years' endeavor on her nickel and copper claims will soon lay bare abundant fruit.

G. S. Herman, one of her later associates in the development of claims at one time valued at $5,000,000, situated on Rice Island, Herb lake, more than 100 miles from The Pas, has started legal action at Dauphin seeking specific performance of an agreement said to have existed between himself and Miss Rice and others.

Some of the most romantic figures in Canadian mining history enter into the story of the action; of these none is more colorful than that of Miss Rice herself, who was graduated from the University of Toronto, in 1906, plunged into a then unorthodox feminine career, taking to trousers quite as naturally as she did to bobbed hair.

Descended from a man who came over on the Mayflower, she decided to blaze trails herself, starting by teaching school in the West, and then with her brother, Lincoln, flinging herself into the prospecting game near The Pas.

It was in 1922, by staking her now famous claims on Rice Island, that the seeds were sown for the approaching legal battle.

Average Citizen Can Add Five Years to Life

Chicago.—America's average citizen can increase his life span at least five years—without cost to himself.

That was the thought that Major Gen. M. W. Ireland, surgeon general of the United States army, president of the American College of Surgeons, brought with him to Chicago for the organization's nineteenth annual convention.

"We believe we've given army officers at least that much longer lease on life," he said. "And there's no reason why the system wouldn't work for civilians."

It was simply this—an annual health inventory once a year, on the average citizen's birthday anniversary, for instance. The added life expectancy can be obtained without cost. There are insurance companies willing, anxious even, to pay for these annual health inventories. It saves them millions of dollars.

ANCIENT MANSION STILL UNPAINTED

Dusty Brushes Lay Where Painters Dropped Them.

Natchez, Miss.—It's going to be done some day.

In this sleepy little town on the Mississippi side of the Father of Waters the enterprising citizens some day will finish the little painting job that was started on the eve of the outbreak of the Civil war. Mute testimony of the spontaneity with which loyal Southerners responded to the call to arms stands in a room on the second floor of the magnificent residence of Miss Julia Nutt.

The whole story is this: William Nutt came to Virginia from England about 1000. His great grandson, Rush Nutt, after studying medicine in Philadelphia, decided to come to Jefferson county, Miss., to practice his profession. He purchased a large plantation near Natchez. He was industrious and enterprising and being a person of education was one of the three men who founded Oakland college, now known as Alcorn A. & M. College.

Ornate Mansion Planned.

His son, Haller, became a scientific farmer and improved the crude Whitney cotton gin, making it so perfect that from 1838 until the close of the Civil war no changes were made on it.

In 1853 the son purchased the site on which "Longwood," the ornate mansion, was to be erected, just outside of the city. Grand mansion were no novelty, for there are many here, some of them said to be the finest homes in the South. This, however, was to be the grandest of them all.

It was designed along classic lines and built on the plans drawn up by one Sloan of Philadelphia. It was four stories high, surmounted by a domed cupola.

In 1860 the top of the cupola was the highest point in the South. The shape of the house, which stands to this day, is octagonal, each room opening from the rotunda. Finishing touches and the paintings were being done in 1861 when the war broke out. The painters were on the second floor when word came of the firing on Fort Sumter. The painters in their haste to enlist dropped their brushes and left the palatial right where they stood.

Fortune Lost in War.

The war cost the Nutts their fortune. Completion of the stately home was delayed and to this day the finishing of the second and third floor remains to be done. The house is still well preserved, however, despite its incompleted portion.

And the paint pots still stand there, covered with dust, and waiting for that eventful day when work will be resumed. They have become something of a shrine to the Nutt family, who, having forgotten their feud with the North, still regard it with reverence the spirit which sent thousands of Confederate soldiers to combat the invasion of the Northern troops.

Some day, the old-timers tell visitors, the work will be done—when the painters get around to it."

Discover New Enemy in Fight Against Malaria

Chicago.—Man's war against malaria has developed in the tropics into a battle with his newest blood relative of the animal kingdom, the red spider monkey, it was pointed out to visitors of the Gorgas Memorial laboratory in session here by Dr. Herbert Clarke, one of the board.

Doctor Clarke, who is in charge of laboratory work at Panama City, Canal Zone, said that on an expedition this summer into the jungle he had discovered that the monkey is a malaria carrier.

"The mosquito that carries malaria germs bites the monkey, infecting him and then other mosquitoes pick up the germs from his blood stream," the doctor said. "Neither the government nor the Gorgas Memorial laboratory expects to attempt extermination of red spider monkeys, but rather to segregate them away from the centers of population."

Colorado Golden Highway Assays $3,000 to Mile

Fort Morgan, Colo.—Without doubt one of the strangest and most expensive highways in the world is in the southern part of Colorado. The highway, at least a part of it, is called the Golden Highway because of the large amount of gold content in its pavement. The particular five miles contain $15,620 worth of virgin gold, $3,000 worth for every mile.

The precious metal found its humble resting place by reason of the fact that the crushed rock for the cement mix was shipped from the ore dumps of the Cripple Creek gold field. The gold in this material assayed $1.50, to the ton and 2,000 tons were used for each mile of the wonderful highway.

Mountain Sides Crack

Guatemala City.—Enormous cracks, some of them 1,000 feet in length, have opened in the side of Las Pelotas mountain, in the municipality of Ipala-chiquimula. The large quantity of hot water flowing from the crevices has alarmed the population.

Gets Million Tourists

Vancouver, B. C.—More than 1,100,000 tourists came to British Columbia this year and spent in the neighborhood of $35,000,000, it is estimated by publicity bureau officials here.

SEEKING TO DECODE OLDEST OF SECRETS

Experts Study Writing on Ancient Brick.

Paris.—A small gray brick with curious marking is being studied by the leading archeologists of France. The brick is from Ras Shamra, a kingdom that existed 3,400 years ago, and the markings are a hand-written message of its king.

Older than any existing specimen of handwriting out of Egypt, Crete or China, the brick is a puzzle to the man who read hieroglyphics as easily as detective stories. Charles Virolleaud, who has undertaken deciphering of the message, asserts that it is the oldest secret in existence.

The brick was brought to France recently from Syria where the Ras Shamra excavations are in progress. Virolleaud has taken it into his study and, figuratively, locked himself in. He said he hoped to have a solution, or at least, a theory by December.

Alphabet of Twenty-Six Signs.

Preliminary examinations disclose that the alphabet of the country had 26 signs and were related to the Babylonian in that they were cuneiform. Each word contains three or four signs and the words are separated from each other by a deeply etched vertical line. The writing covers both sides of the brick.

Asked how he would proceed to solve the problem, Virolleaud said: "I will start with some plausible hypothesis. I will assume, let us say, that the brick contains a message either written by the king of Ras Shamra, or written to him by the monarch of a neighboring realm. Deciphered, the brick may reveal the existence of a civilization the world has never heard of before.

Luck May Help.

"Further specimens of this writing which will undoubtedly be unearthed as the excavations continue, will lighten the task which for the moment is extremely difficult and a total mystery. The presence of one Greek word, a hieroglyph, a Phoenician word and the task would be simple.

"The belief that the brick is a royal document is confirmed somewhat by the presence of a proper name at the top of the inscription. The name is Aka-Hinni. The title has disappeared, the tablet being broken at this point. The document, if it can be so-called, is made more interesting by the fact that it is not written in Babylonian which was the diplomatic language of that era.

"Luck, that god of archeologists and newspaper men, often operates in our favor. Among the inscriptions discovered in Syria and now on the way to Paris there is a Babylonian text which may help us find out who Aka-Hinni was."

Baby Reaches Physical Maturity at 22 Months

Belgrade.—Mandan, an isolated hamlet in the Milanovatz district, discovered a twenty-two months' old girl with full physical maturity. The baby, the child of a peasant family, showed early signs of abnormal body development and months ago possessed breast and other traits of a full grown woman. Superstitious neighbors threatened to kill the child, which they believe is a sure sign that the devil is glancing towards the vicinity of Belgrade. Physicians, however, came to the rescue. They plan to remove the child to a Belgrade clinic for study.

Eagle Clubbed to Death in Attack on Children

Moosejaw, Sask.—A giant golden eagle lies battered to death here after making swooping attacks on school children and standing its ground against the club-swinging onslaughts of adults.

The eagle stood its ground and faced the attackers, beating wings that measured more than seven feet from tip to tip. Under the heavy strokes of a club, the bird fell dead.
